START THE

Training for Teachers

The Start the Change project aims to transform young people's understanding of the Sustainable Development Goals, inequality and human migration and show how we can all make a positive difference, locally and globally.

Secondary teachers of all subject areas can attend free training and receive individual support and mentoring.

Start the Change

This EU-funded project is working with teachers and schools across 12 European countries to inspire youth-led active global citizenship.

Free Training

The 2 day practical training course covers:

- Learning for Sustainability and Global Citizenship Education
- The UN Sustainable Development Goals & the links between migration & inequality
- Approaches to transformative education such as storytelling and service learning
- Inspiring ideas from Colm Regan, writer and activist,

Mentoring & Support

Project staff can provide individualised support to develop a subject-specific unit of work on a relevant theme.

Youth Action

We can also support you to set up groups of young people at your school who are interested in these issues and want to take positive action, from making your school more welcoming for new arrivals, to engaging in the wider global issues that cause migration such as climate change and trade injustice. Funding is available to support young people to take action on a related issue of their choice.
